About Our Speaker

Dr. Ike McKinnon

Isaiah "Ike" McKinnon is a husband, Catholic, Doctor of Higher Education Administration, veteran, former chief of police and deputy-mayor; most of all he's a catalyst of change.

"Ike McKinnon has been a lifelong leader. He led Detroit's police as their chief, led Detroit's citizens as deputy mayor, led college students as a professor, and led security staffs that guarded the University of Detroit Mercy, the Renaissance Center and, these days, are guarding the hometown venues of the Detroit Pistons, Red Wings and Tigers. Through his legendary career, while leading organizations, McKinnon has also been a thought leader. He forever challenged, inspired, and sometimes pushed those around him to share his vision of a better Detroit, the city where McKinnon has lived since arriving with his family from Alabama at age 9 in 1953. He didn't keep to himself his vision for a region of less racism, violence and ignorance. He lived his vision in how he led others, and in how he spoke, wrote and broadcast that vision...He earned bachelor's and master's degrees at UDM, and a Ph.D. in 1981 from Michigan State University. In 1984, he retired from the Detroit Police Department with the rank of inspector, formed his own security firm, then returned in 1993 to spend five years as chief, chosen by Detroit's then newly elected mayor, Dennis Archer. In 2013, Detroit Mayor Mike Duggan appointed McKinnon deputy mayor. To serve, McKinnon took a two-year leave from his post as associate professor of education at UDM. He retired last year after more than two decades of teaching." (Laitner, 2021, para. 1-4, 14, 16)
